CRISP SPORTING COMMENT

Rumors of St. Asaph Track Cutting Loose from the Jockey Club.

PROMISE OF ALL WINTER RACING

Owing to the Uncertain Outlook in New York State for the Turf, Indications Are the Jockey Cinb Has Outlived Its Usefulness and May Be Given the Go-by Very Soon.

It will not be at all surprising if the Virginta Jockey Club officials out loose from the Joekey Club and race all winter at the St. Asaph track. Since the election, when New York State voted for the constitutional amendment prohibiting pool-selling or bookmaking, the racing people are very much perturbed as to the future in New York. Under the license granted by the Jockey Club, the meeting at St. Asuph must close on Nowember 38, but recently an application was made for que mouth's extension. The snew ards of the Jockey Club met in New York on Saturday, but as far as reported did not consults and others made, and the majority of the control of the contro perturbed as to the future in New York. It was been stated by a club official the material for glassing in the front of the grand stand is all prepared and it is only a matter of a few days for the work to be done. Another indication is the continued accession to the number of locuses at the course, there being disily arrivals and many more airs expected. Then the built-mile track. course, there come unity arrives and many more are expected. Then the half-mile track, stimuled less than a mile from St. Asaph, has been socured and stabling will be provided for these horses, which cannot be accom-modated at the big course. It would be al-most folly for the Virginia Joelov Club to go most folic for the Virginia Jockey Chub to go to all the expense if it was the intention to wind up the meeting in less than three weeks. The club has expended thousands of Johnse in fitting up St. Asaph, and the chance to get back the investment is this winter when the horses are here, the New Yorkers are here, and it is legal to race. The elimate is suitake for winter racing, and it promises to be a go.

LONDON PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Production of Beerbahm Tree's New Play, "John o' Dreams."

NOT A PLEASANT PERFORMANCE

It Is a Passion Drama in Which the "Femme Perdue" Figures Largely-Mrs. Ormiston Chant Glories in Her Somewhat Equivocal Victory-General Dramatic Gossip,

[Copyrighted, '94, by the Associated Press.] London, Nov. 11.—The production of Haddon Chambers' "John o' Dreams" at the Haymarket Theater, on Thursday last, was the event of the autumn season. While the approval by a critical audience, this was more due to the splendid acting and staging than to the merits of the play itself with its reclaimed courtesan, whose mother was a courtesan before her, as the heroine and an opium-eating poet as the hero. The performance was not allogether pleasant in spite of the art of Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Mr. Beerbohin Tree.

"John o' Dreams" is the soubriquet of one Harold Winn, a young poet and dreamer, who is contrasted in the play to a realistic char-For the Reserves McGowna and Hooker did good work, the latter especially doing same strong tackling. "The play derives much dramatic force from the hero's desperate efforts, through the indicence of a poetic love, to struggle against on hyreditary tendency to seek consolation in narrotics. I have only faintly foreshadowed the psychology of the play—and have not attempted to describe the plot. Perhaps the Persian poet Halls's lines may tell you more than mine. They are the text of the play, and they run:

The Times in its critique of the play draws attention to the rapid progress of the passion drams and the freedom with which the 'learne partine' and her interests are now discussed on the English stage.
